Commentary

South African banks enjoyed a strong October driven by the news that China's largest bank, ICBC, is buying a 20% holding in Standard Bank. Standard Bank will issue new shares to ICBC equal to 10% with a further 10% acquired from existing shareholders at a 30% premium to the 30 day average price. The strategic rationale for the deal is to capitalise on the significant and growing trade flows between China and Africa. Standard Bank is very well positioned in Africa and this deal should enable the company to benefit from increased Chinese corporate activity in Africa. What the deal highlights is the relative attractiveness of South African financials to other emerging market financials. South African banks are very well managed, have excellent systems and most have no sub-prime exposure. The Fund has a 16% holding in banks compared to the index weighting of only 9%. While we believe bank earnings are somewhat high, we think they should still continue to grow from this level. At around 11 times forward earnings, we find banks attractive relative to the market.
